Dimensions Index:
VOLUME SEVENTEEN

AUTHORS

Baker, Betty Ruth
Planning the environment and activities for block play which will contribute to creative, social, physical, and cognitive development of young children.

Chrisman, Kent, & Couchenour, Donna
A focus on the problems, concerns, and realities of preparing teachers for developmentally appropriate programs.

Davies, W. Anne
(IDEAS).
Procedures for creating a safe environment and activities for teaching safety principles to young children.

Fulton, Arlene M.
An examination of issues pertaining to the use of microcomputers in child care centers and preschools in light of recent studies.

Gold, Susan & Abbott, Carole
Systemic observation techniques and screening instruments for early detection of problems which require referral.

Goldman, Renee, & Goldman, Richard
By immersing himself with children, child care staff, and parents, Senate Graham has firsthand data to share with his colleagues.

Gordon, Sandra L.
Methods of providing a variety of experiences for children to explore the possibilities of writing as an integrated aspect of life.

Graves, Stephen B., & Garguilo, Richard M.
Constructing parent-professional partnerships for successful early intervention regarding Public Law 99-457.

Greathouse, Betty, Moyer, Joan E., & Rhodes, Elizabeth
Activities for home learning which are based on family situations and relationships.

Gullo, Dominic F.
Activities for parents of preschoolers which contribute to language development.

Hall, Jane S.
Creating a structure of small family groups for continued parent involvement in preschool programs.

Lombardi, Joan
Strategies for addressing the staffing crisis and compensation for child care teachers.

Lund, Susan
How early childhood advocates in one community took advantage of business interest to increase the availability of child care.

Manning, M. Lee
Description of the social and psychological benefits of involved fathers with evidence of their successful participation in early childhood settings.

Raines, Shirley C., & Isbell, Rebecca T.
Pros and cons of using wordless picture books to develop a sense of story.

Rogers, Lynell B.
Effective use of transitional activities to help stimulate orderly movement of children by getting their attention and setting them what to expect.

Saul, Jane E.
Using the flannel board as a teaching tool to develop the intermediate step between the concrete and abstract.

Schiller, Pam, & Rossano, Joan
Using art to develop creativity while children are actively involved in dramatic play, construction, music, science, math, language, and outdoor play.

Smith, Robert F.
Criteria for developmentally appropriate science experiences in the preschool, and related activities.

Swick, Kevin J.
A review of research on parental attributes as they relate to various aspects of children's development and learning.

Swick, Kevin J.
Ways of developing a sensitivity to the experiences and needs of families undergoing transformations at their effect on children's behavior.

Williams, Rosanne C.
Activities for encouraging children to use instruments which they can control to a reasonable degree, so they can emerge with a concept of themselves as competent, energetic music participants.

SUBJECTS

Administration & Management

Advocacy

Child Development
Curriculum

New Products

Parent Involvement

Professional Literature

Writing

---

Children's Book Reviews

Carter, Margaret, "Go Away, William!" Vol. 17, No. 4 (July 1989), p. 22.

Classroom Management
